WE NOMINATE

Richard William Kazmaier Jr., at age 20 one of Princeton's all-time gridiron greats, who has caught and held the attention of the nation's press, as the self-conscious East has revelled in the feats of a slimly built 171-pounder. In the hubbub created by Nassau's 53-15 conquest of Cornell, a game in which Kazmaier proved himself 1951's counterpart of the mythical and now venerable Frank Merriwell, this section of the country began to believe that football is still played along the Atlantic Seaboard, that it is not always necessary to glorify the fumble foundries of the hinterlands.

More important than touchdowns scored and yards gained (and halfway through his senior season he has accounted for a total net gain of nearly two miles) is the fact that Kazmaier continues to look upon his favorite sport as an outlet rather than as an end in itself. At a time when many are lambasting the "excesses of athletics," it is refreshing to hear Kazmaier, a psychology "Major" and an Associated Press All-American selection in 1950, relegate football to a secondary role and declare he will benefit most from the kind of education he is seeking and from the experience of living and working with others in a university.

Kazmaier, with his superstition that he must be last man off the practice-field Friday afternoons, with his desire to grasp the "why" of minute football details, entered Princeton from Maumee

(Ohio) High School where in a student body of only 150 boys he carried off awards in four sports. Not until fall's end did he see first-string duty with the Tiger freshman squad and the following September Coach Charles Caldwell was concerned about his size, his capacity for absorbing physical punishment. Three weeks later he shattered Caldwell's worries by running wild against mighty Pennsylvania.

The son of a former Toledo University athlete, Kazmaier is reluctant to discuss his own achievements. Yesterday's game might be a blur insofar as his personal contributions go, but this perfectionist will recall such highlights as the block John Emery threw in shaking George Sella loose for the winning touchdown against Dartmouth in 1949. With no intention of taking up professional football, Kazmaier is unlike fictional footballers: for there is no pet play, no preference for running or passing, no blatant emotionalism. He would put it this way: "Football is my game. I love it and that is why I play."

For insisting that he has done nothing exceptional; for personifying the ideals which should be the basis of sound intercollegiate sport; for understanding that football is important only as long as it doesn't interfere with the primary purposes of academic life; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

foresighted souls had tickets admitting them to Palmer Stadium for the Cornell game last Saturday and a few thousand more did not. Among the latter group, however, were three enterprising young men who weren't to be denied admission to the East's game of the year.

Borrowing a panel truck, they drove out to Penns Neck and bought a bale of hay for which they paid 86 cents. Arriving at the stadium, they announced politely but firmly that "This load of hay is to go immediately to the Cornell bench."

The main gate was promptly opened, the three football fans drove around to the open end of the stadium and, without going near the Cornell bench, parked happily just beyond the end zone all afternoon. It's still anybody's guess (including the gatekeeper's)
what the hay was for.

To the Polls. A basic lack of campaigning at all levels and a number of unopposed candidates at the local level are characteristics of the election campaign that comes to a close Tuesday. The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., with light balloting expected.

Within the Princeton community, two races are of major interest. Democratic council candidates the contracting and developing business and runs a ticket agency that bears his name.

Samuel J. Plumeri, engaged in real estate and insurance, and Arthur B. Peterson, employed by John A. Roebling's Sons for 22 years as a dropforger, are the Republican candidates running against them. All four men live in the greater Trenton area.

With the township Sunday liquor sales referendum off the ballot, as reported here last week, the only question facing the voters is approval of a $15,000,000 bond issue providing for the physical improvement of New Jersey's six state teachers colleges. Because of its increasing population and high birth rate during the war, New Jersey now has a shortage of 3,000 teachers, and more will be needed in the years immediately ahead.

Conditions in the colleges where they are trained are markedly inadequate, right down to such basic facilities as classrooms, laboratory facilities, gymnasium and dormitory space. The referendum has the backing of many groups through the state, including the Chamber of Commerce and the League of Women Voters.

No new tax will be imposed by the bond issue, which can be paid for through surplus or the transfer inheritance tax revenue. The need for an adequate supply of well-trained teachers is a fundamental requirement of a well-run democracy. It is to be hoped particularly in a community whose basic "industries" are education and research that the referendum will be accorded an enlightened, affirmative vote.

Correction. One of the problems involved in publishing on anything less than a daily basis is inability to follow up a good news story or, in fortunately rarer instances, to issue corrections when they are necessary. Town Topics wishes to call attention to the fact that the call issued by the First Presbyterian Church to the Rev. John R. Bodo was by majority vote rather than on a unanimous basis, as was reported here last week.

Postponing Death. Based on figures kept for the past 45 years by the National Safety Council, the millionth man to be killed in a traffic accident in this country will die sometime in December. Statistics charted over a period of more than four decades are likely to run true to form, yet in this case, their control is completely within the power of the American people.

In an effort to enlist the cooperation of all who live within the Princeton area in postponing the death of the millionth man—in doing everything possible to reduce injury and death on the highways—the National Safety Council has prepared a series of striking advertisements. The first of them appears on page five of this issue, sponsored here in Princeton by The Shelton Motor Company of 300 Witherspoon Street.

The drive received the endorsement this week of Magistrate Paul E. Chesebro, chairman of the Highway Safety Committee in Princeton. "A continuing campaign to keep the public aware of the need for every precaution is essential in these days of mounting accident tolls," Mr. Chesebro said. "Property damage can be cut, injuries lessened and lives saved through this very sort of awareness."

Cold Hands—Warm Heart?

Finger-Tip Control. A whole series of hand-crocheted string gloves at Clayton's on Palmer Square, done up in good country neutrals like tobacco brown, beige, sulphur yellow or white are pitched on the palm with pignis to keep them from skidding on packages or steering wheels. Actually, these are the best driving gloves we've seen, being unobtrusive enough to give you finger-snap, but sturdy enough to take a curve without slipping. Five ninety-five is the price for the big-palmed jobs, but you can slip on a plain pair in any of the same colors for $2.

Lamplighter Sweaters. Also at Clayton's, some sweaters that might just as well be first-cousin to a cashmere, they look and feel so much like the real thing. Usually we're not a girl to take to substitutes, but at the current price of that little Iranian animal we're glad to have a sweater—even one we've knit ourselves—for as little as $7.95.

Seriously though, all the Clayton things are knit on cashmere looms of soft, downy lamb's wool that comes in all the luscious cashmere colors, and if you want to fool yourself into thinking that you're wearing the import jobs you might sew on some of the timely pastel decorations that have made such a hit in the plushier salons... a neat selection of which Clayton's has popped in a basket near the sweater counter for do-it-yourself hours.

There's a baker's dozen of almost everything in that basket from pearl and gold choker motifs to sew around the neckline of a pullover, to tiny jeweled hearts to pin on your sleeve. These start for as little as $1, and that's pin-money compared to the imports.

Lanova and L'Aiglon. Lanova—a new fabric that's light and warm at the same time, woven in Switzerland especially for the L'Aiglon people of equal parts lamb's wool and long-staple Egyptian cotton, a combination that keeps you warm without feeling humid. Washable, sanforized, crease-resistant, this new wonder weave is handled with all the aplomb that L'Aiglon rooters have come to expect of those deceptively expensive-looking casual dresses done by that house.

Being light-weight, Lanova tailors beautifully, and being part cotton it comes out of the dryer in the clear, un-muddy colorings of broadcloth. The Joan Shop, 63 Palmer Square, has all these new L'Aiglon things exclusively in Princeton. Our favorite of the whole batch is a casual young Tattersall plaid that looks as if it stepped straight from Liberty's in London, but sells American Plan for a mere $29.95.

Festival of Salzburg. (Lanz, that is!) Joan's bright Helen Saller has come up with another coup by bringing back to Princeton the Lanz of Salzburg things. Having at one time been the proud owner of an original German-speaking Lanz suit, we've always had a soft spot for the gay alpine decor that is typically this maker's. Obviously the whole thing's become Americanized (California-ized in a better word), but without sacrificing the spirit of the originals.

These clothes are designed particularly for the young with a strong dinnit flavor, but we can't think of a nicer look nif hand for that difficult teen-twenty age group. A turkey red calico cotton —Continued on Page 11

Four basic suggestions for safety appear in the first advertisement, and others will follow. Read them, and then make sure that you will be around for Christmas.

On Hunting and Houses. Two ordinances this week stirred up no little interest in Princeton township, whose municipal building was packed to capacity plus Monday night. The occasion was a public hearing on the law restricting hunting, and a revision to the zoning ordinance.

After being debated pro and con for more than two hours, the ordinance requiring hunters to have the written consent of those whose land they use was passed unanimously. Penalties are fines up to $200, 90 days in jail or both.

Property owners have reported increasing danger to their children.

houses peppered with bullets and dogs actually hit. The measure is not planned to end hunting but merely to reduce the number of sportsmen on a tract of land and thereby afford deserved protection to residents of the community.

The township committee also introduced an ordinance prohibiting the construction of two-family houses in its residence district No. 2. The measure was passed on first reading by a 2-to-1 margin, with Committee Chairman Bertram L. Gulek, Jr. casting the dissenting vote. A public hearing will be held Monday, November 12, at 8 p. m.

Residents of Grover and Durbin Avenues and other sections of the Clearview development have signed a petition in support of the committee's action. A score of homes housing two families each has reportedly been planned for the area by Theodore R. Potts, who has been the builder of a majority of the houses now standing in that section of Princeton Township.

More on Vendors. Operation Nassau announced this week that while it has had several requests to investigate the matter of the mobile "snack bars" operating at various hours in the business district, no action is planned at present for two reasons.

In the first place, it was pointed out for the organization by John A. Archer, Operation Nassau is primarily concerned with the color and design of store fronts in the business section. Establishments which are mobile are not basically within its scope, Mr. Archer said.

Secondly, the mayor and council have been studying the question of itinerant vendors for several weeks, and Operation Nassau does not wish to create a conflict. The Business Association has asked that the governing body look into the matter of both higher fees for such vendors, and has also suggested strongly that more stringent health requirements for the food handlers among them would benefit the public.

Minister Called. The Unitarian Fellowship has announced that the Rev. Hugo Leeming has accepted a call to serve its members and the Trenton Unitarian Church as their minister. He will begin his new duties here this month.

A native of New England and a graduate of the University of Richmond in Virginia, Mr. Leeming also holds degrees from Columbia University and Meadville Theological Seminary in Chicago. He has taught at the American University in Beirut, Lebanon, and for the

Don't you be the Millionth Man (or the one who kills him)

America's millionth traffic fatality will occur this December, the National Safety Council says. Is it possible to postpone that millionth death? Are there any steps you can take to avoid being the victim—or the unwilling killer? Yes! Remember these simple safety rules. Put them into practice... all the time.

Obeey speed laws! Speeding drivers are involved in 1 out of 3 fatal traffic accidents. If you like to speed, better slow down—before it costs you your life.

Watch out for children! Last year, 120,000 children were involved in accidents. Be extra cautious when driving near schools, playgrounds, or in residential areas.

Safety-check your car! Bad brakes, tires or lights can put you and your family in the hospital, or in the cemetery. Keep your car in perfect running condition.

Be doubly alert at night! Over half of all traffic fatalities occur at night. Walking or driving, you need a double order of caution to make up for reduced visibility.

Four simple rules. Follow them.

News of the Theatres

McCARTER THEATRE

The young Spanish singer, Victoria de los Angeles, who made her American debut a year ago and was immediately enthusiastically received, will give a recital in the McCarter Saturday night at 8:30. Her appearance marks the second in Series I of the University Concerts season.

Just 26 years old, she has followed a "success story" career, rising to the top rank after being born to a caretaker's family at the University of Barcelona. Currently on transcontinental tour in the United States before opening at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, she was heard in Carnegie Hall last spring before capacity audiences.

Miss de los Angeles will sing a program including selections from Monteverdi, Handel, Scarlatti, Schumann, Faure, Ravel, Gounod, Guridi, de Falla and Turina. Tickets at the University Store and, on Saturday evening, at the box office.

THE EUROPA

Because of heavy attendance, the Europa Theatre in New Brunswick (Somerset and Scott Streets) has held over "Tales of Hoffman." The film will run through Saturday, with performances at 7 and 9:20. Numerous Princetonians report it thoroughly delightful.

Starting Friday, November 9, Manager Louis Vassar will present "Die Fledermaus." An Austrian production with English titles, it features the always beautiful music of Johann Strauss in a Technicolor setting.

GROUP ARTS CLASSICS

Emil Jannings is featured in the 1924 production, "The Last Laugh," which will be presented this Friday night in McCosh 10 under Groups Arts auspices. Performances are at 7 and 9 o'clock, tickets at the door. The picture is the third in the current series of old-time film revivals.

THE PLAYHOUSE

A Streetcar Named Desire (Thurs.-Sat.) follows the tragic fate of a once-glamorous Southern belle whose heritage has ebbed away, whose husband has committed suicide and who eventually experiences complete degradation. Powerful in its emotions, impressively written (by Tennessee Williams, to win the 1947 Pulitzer Prize), the picture gets topflight acting from Vivien Leigh, Marlon Brando and Kim Hunter. Advanced prices; second show at 9:20.

Mr. Imperium (Sun.-Tues.) features the singing (three times) of Enzo Penza (formerly of "South Pacific") and the beauty of blonde Lana Turner. It also wraps them up in a plot about the king of a mythical nation who sacrifices his perfect romance with a lovely girl to return to his subjects, by all odds one of the most incredibly poor and badly acted stories to come out of Hollywood in some seasons.

An American in Paris (Wed.-Sat.) is already ranked as one of the topflight musicals and appears destined to achieve wide popularity. Many of the melodious songs written by the late George Gershwin (with lyrics by brother Ira) are featured; concert pianist Oscar Levant's playing of the "Concerto in F" with full symphony orchestra is one of the best numbers. Cavalry Scout (Fri-Sat.) involves adventure on the Montana frontier of 1866, when Indians were preparing to battle General Custer and the Gatling gun was first being used by the U. S. Army. A colorful, generally well-made western with Rod Cameron and Audrey Long.

Showboat (Mon-Tues.), here last Summer, is back for another trip down the languid Mississippi to the tunes written by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein 2d and sung the nation over for the past quarter century. Gaily-costumed, lavishly pictured and featuring Kathryn Grayson, Ava Gardner and Joe E. Brown.

Four in a Jeep (Wed-Thurs.), pictured in occupied Vietnam, spins a well-told tale of a manhunt against a background of the quarrels that flared among the four ruling nations, the U. S., Britain, France and Russia. Swedish actress Viveca Lindfors heads an able cast in a somewhat different film that benefits from its authentic background and fine photography.

Was an American Spy (Fri-Sat.) is based on the Readers' Digest story about a cafe entertainer who trapped the Japs into parting with information in Manila during the last war. Ann Dvorak and Gene Evans do their best with a picture that never rises above the level of ordinary melodrama.

flannel with a calico print is bound in black braid, has the famous Lanz silver buttons hitching it together down the front.
A slender black velvetteen princess dress has heavy, native-looking white lace filling in a square neckline and rippling from elbow length sleeves. Fourteen dollars and 95 cents is the startling point for all this, and that, too, was a pleasant, nostalgic surprise.

Evening Scotch: A long drink of scotch for fire-lit evenings in some new skirts by Florence Walsh at the Clothes Line, 53 Palmer Square. These are built on a cricle, look high-wide and handsome to this reporter who's blessed with chilly ankles from Thanksgiving on.
The whole idea of long skirts for evenings at home makes sense to us with coal by the ton costing something close to the Hope diamond. And anyway—what could look prettier and more gracious, especially if he sees you in pants or jeans every morning as he wings off for the 7:42?
The Welsh things come in practically all the more popular Scotch plaids and really are a lot of good wooly stuff for $19.95.

Red Flannel Red. Maybe you don't insist on bright red long-Johns, come the snow and blow, for your sprouts, but any young man-about-town could stay less than frosted if he wore a Prep Shop red flannel shirt over and above his cowboy regalia. These are super-heavy, made of a sort of blanket material like a Hudson Bay blanket, but cut like a shirt to tuck in or wear tail-hanging over jeans. You'll find them in all sizes starting with 8 and at a starting price of $9.95 for the small sizes at the Prep Shop, 12 Chambers.
A small P.S. while we're on the subject of red-flannels as such: you might also look at some pajamas here that are copies of the leg-coverers grandfather wore but unscratchy, being knit of some soft cotton stuff that makes up in its fire-engine blarntness for whatever it might lack in insulation. These start at size 8 and are $2.95.

a second straight sweep without certain basic reservations. Of these, the two major developments that could spoil the record are injuries and rain, and both are totally unforeseeable.
"Even if we don't get banged up in scrimmage or during a game," Charlie Caldwell said Sunday in discussing the final four contests, "how do I know someone won't break an ankle coming down the ramp into the stadium?" That, incidentally, actually happened a number of years ago.

The other unpredictable factor, the weather, came within a hair's breadth of spoiling the 1950 championship season. Admittedly the hurricane conditions under which the Dartmouth game was played may never be duplicated on an autumn afternoon, but just a steady downpour could mire the Tigers' air arm and running game to the point where an upset could easily occur.
Brown, Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth will, of course, try every unorthodox trick in the book to stage the season's major upset, and no Yaleman forgets the 1934 victory in Palmer Stadium. For that matter, neither does any Princetonian.

The Harvards have an open date this weekend, with coach Lloyd Jordan on hand for a look at Princeton's deception and power. Yale will follow suit next Saturday, when huge Hermann Hickman will watch both his traditional rivals play at Cambridge. It is, of course, a great compliment to Charlie Caldwell, his staff and squad.

Some of the games, particularly those with Yale and Dartmouth, should be spotlight contests for a considerable period of time. At full strength and on a dry field, however, Princeton does not figure to be stopped short of a second successive championship season and 22 victories in a row.

Figures Don't Lie. Statistics in the Tigers' favor began to pile up soon after the Cornell game. They jumped from eighth to sixth in the national rankings compiled by the Associated Press, the spot they held at the end of the 1950 season.

In the Ivy Group, it's virtually all Orange and Black. The Tigers are first in team offense (422 yards per game) and team defense (217.8 yards) by wide margins. Dick Kazmaier is the top individual ground gainer with 944, 300 over his nearest competitor.

Kaz is also tops in rushing and passing, while quarterback George Stevens is the leading pass receiver with 16, followed by John Emery with 14. As the season grows older, some of these figures will begin to show up at the top both sectionally and nationally. It is likely that the Princeton average of 40.8 points scored per game ranks the Tigers in the top five across the nation.

Close Call. Whereas the Princeton University eleven remained undefeated by running roughshod in a game rated a toss up, a heavily-favored Princeton High School team was forced to come from behind in the waning minutes against Somerville to keep its record unblemished.

After trailing for the entire encounter, the Little Tigers eked out a 13-7 victory last Friday on a desperation 23-yard pass play from Bud Bosley to Freddy Wilson with a minute and 45 seconds remaining in the final quarter. Two completed passes by Wilson prior to the TD toss had moved P.H.S. into scoring position.

Somerville scored first on a 68-yard drive in the opening period, and Princeton retaliated immediately with Wilson plunging over to culminate a 52-yard march. The Little Tigers failed to match Somerville's successful extra point attempt, however. The 7-6 margin stood up for more than three periods as P.H.S. was stopped twice within the five-yard stripe in the second before scoring the winning marker.

With five consecutive victories, the Little Tigers will go into this week's game against Manassquan as one of three undefeated and untied Group III high school elevens in the state. The contest is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. on Friday at the high school field.

Four for Beecher. Hun School relied on the scoring ability of Dennis Beecher of Penns Neck to record its first victory of the season, a 33-0 trouncing of Solebury School last Friday at Edgerstowne.

Beecher ran his three-game touchdown total to seven with four markers on dashes of 50, 30, five and three yards. He picked up 170 yards in 17 rushing attempts for an average of 10 yards per try. Tex Sennino, who set up two Hun TD's with pass interceptions, scored the fifth touchdown on a 30-yard sweep around left end.

Coach Jess Willard's Red and Black eleven will strive to reach the 500 mark this week when it plays host to Newark Academy. The game will be played on Saturday morning, starting at 10:30.

Eagles Win Another. Coming from behind with three second half touchdowns, the Eagles football team topped the Bordentown Steelers Saturday, 20-6, to raise their mark for the season to 3-2. They'll play the Long Branch Indians away this weekend.

The visitors shoved over a first-period score but missed the conversion. Bill Inagland split the Steelers' line with a England line buck shortly after the intermission and Jake Bartolino's placement sent the Princetonians ahead.

Dave Ogonowski then hit Red Trant with an accurate toss, the play covering 15 yards for the Eagles' second TD. Tom Smith blocked a punt in the final quarter, Bartolino taking the ball over the remaining 18 yards to end the day's scoring activity.

Two for Two. Princeton Country Day School's six-man football team came from behind to defeat Hun, 12-7, Monday afternoon. The victory was the Blue and White's second in two starts this season.

Art Shannon was the first to score, picking a fumble out of the air in the opening period and going over from 20 yards out. The conversion missed, and after the intermission at the half, Hun struck back to take the lead. Balin tallied on an end run, a pass for the extra point was good and the Red and Black led, 7-6.

In the final quarter, P.C.D. relied for its second touchdown, Tim Ward passing to George Cuyler on a play that covered close to 40 yards. Coach Bud Tibbals' spirited outfit will be looking for its third win when it meets Solebury away this Thursday afternoon.
